The restaurant in question offers a mixed bag of experiences, from mistaken vegan pizza with a soapy taste to pizzas that looked identical and a manager who refused to welcome patrons from a local event. Despite some disappointing encounters, the service was quick and friendly, and the food was decent. The pizzas are particularly recommended, with standout options like a vegan salmon cheese sandwich and deep-fried calzone earning praise. While the atmosphere may not suit everyone's taste, the diverse beer selection and tasty food make this spot worth a visit.
